

1. Inline CSS is contained within the first tag of an HTML element in the style attribute. This technique uses certain rules of styling to that particular piece of work.
2. The biggest drawback is that it renders the maintenance of the websites hard since there is a need to manually update the styles per individual element. It also causes duplicate of code and bigger file sizes as the styles cannot be applied to different components of the page.